Caltrans: Highway 1 reopening just six weeks away

By CHRIS COUNTS

THE EFFORT to clear the biggest slide in California history has been moving quicker than expected, and as a result, Caltrans announced this week that Highway 1 will reopen at Mud Creek sometime in late July.

For local businesses and visitors, the news is cause for celebration — previous estimates had the scenic route reopening in late September.

“It opens up an entire stretch of highway to a worldwide audience, and it means a ‘road to recovery’ for the many businesses that have been impacted by this massive slide,” Jim Shivers of Caltrans told The Pine Cone.

The work was aided by clear skies.

“We’ve had very good weather to work with,” Shivers explained. “We did not have a severe rainy season, which allowed the construction team to make great progress.”

Shivers also noted that crews have working on the site seven days a week.

The highway at Mud Creek has been closed since May 20, 2017, when a massive slide dumped an estimated 5 million cubic yards of rock, dirt and debris on the pavement. The slide is located just south of Gorda near the Monterey County line, and for more than a year has blocked one of the world’s most famous oceanfront highways. It added about 15 acres of new land to the coast.

The new stretch of pavement will be located slightly below where the previous one was, with a series of embankments, berms, rocks, netting, culverts and other stabilizing material supporting the steep hillside. And to prevent coastal erosion, numerous large boulders have been placed at the toe of the slide to serve as a buffer between waves and the slope.

Until the highway is rebuilt, motorists can only access Big Sur by traveling south of Carmel along Highway 1, or by driving west of Highway 101 along Jolon and Nacimiento-Fergusson roads.

The project is expected to cost taxpayers $40 million.

Dallas says he’ll seek second term

By MARY SCHLEY

SAYING HE’S changed his ways after allegations of sexual harassment were leveled against him, Mayor Steve Dallas announced this week that he plans to seek a second term.

Dallas was elected to the city council in 2014 and then as mayor in 2016, and said he wants to continue building on the progress he and the city council have made during his term.

“I want to continue giving back to the village that I love,” he said.

A third-generation resident who attended Carmel High and has a bachelor’s degree in business administration from Golden Gate University, Dallas worked on residential projects with his mother, Mitzi, and was a member of the planning commission before running for election four years ago.

He said he wants to keep focusing on several pressing issues, including the remodel and expansion of the police station — “We haven’t touched that place in 50 years,” he said — and the Monterey Peninsula’s seemingly endless water problems. He serves on the mayors’ water group alongside the heads of other Peninsula cities.

Regarding the California Public Employees Retirement System, which pays retirees through contributions and investments that have fallen well short of targets — and therefore saddled its member cities, counties and districts with bigger bills — Dallas wants to figure out how to refinance some of those liabilities.

On Measure D, the 1 percent sales tax that voters approved in 2012 and which expires in 2022, he said he wants to ask voters to extend the tax, perhaps for another 20 years.

“Then we can work on CalPERS, building maintenance and other issues,” he said.

DOG SURVIVES MAULING BY TRIO OF GREAT DANES

By CHRIS COUNTS

AFTER A brutal attack by three great Danes in Pebble Beach, a one-year-old German shorthaired pointer named Emma is trying to regain her health.

Emma and her owners, Gordon McCall and his wife Molly, were on a walk in the Beach Club parking lot near Stillwater Cove June 10 when they were surprised by the great Danes, which Gordon McCall said were unleashed and weighed more than 100 pounds each. The incident happened about 6:30 p.m.

McCall said it quite windy at the time, and he and wife couldn’t hear the dogs come up from behind. He described the attack as “violent” and “unprovoked.” “They came out of nowhere,” he said.

In response, the McCalls desperately tried to protect Emma against the aggressive dogs.

“Molly was able to fend one off by hitting it with her sandals,” McCall said. “But the other one was seriously trying to kill Emma. I was able to lift her up to my shoulder, but in the course of doing so, one of the great Danes latched onto her stomach with a serious bite. After several punches to its head, I was able to get the great Dane off of her.”

Emma was treated for her injuries at Pet Specialists in Monterey.

“Emma is stitched up with tubes coming out of her, but it appears that she is on the mend, convalescing at home on meds for the next two weeks,” McCall reported. “We are hoping that this trauma will not negatively affect her as she grows

Grand jury targets P.G.’s handling of failed hotel

By KELLY NIX

THE CITY of Pacific Grove was “sloppy” and ill-prepared in its handling of a proposed luxury hotel in the American Tin Cannery, and the city manager’s cozy relationship with a subcontractor for the project created the appearance of a conflict of interest, according to a report released by the Monterey County Grand Jury this week.

In an 18-page report rich with alleged missteps by the city, the panel found that Pacific Grove — in pursuit of the luxury hotel development known as Project Bella — lacked adequate procedures to account for employee time spent on the project and track documents.

“A lack of appropriate controls on the part of the city administration contributed to unreimbursed costs of more than $101,402.47 to the city,” according to the report.

The city, the jury found, also failed to “follow standard

WITH QUESTIONS over the remodel and expansion of the Carmel police station, including concerns over setback, parking and landscaping, the planning commission asked the architect to make changes and bring them back for consideration.

Commissioners, who were tasked with making design recommendations to the city council for the $1.9 million project, were primarily concerned about the impact of the proposed building on Junipero Street because it would extend all the way to the sidewalk on the west side.

While there was discussion over scaling back the building, the commission decided it liked the same project favored by most of the city council over a smaller, less expensive remodel.

The plan includes a new dispatch, evidence-processing and property rooms, as well as a utility room, offices, an ADA-compliant bathroom, and the relocation of the emergency operations center from the basement to the ground level.

But commissioner Christopher Bolton said the proposed building would be too “far forward,” which would make it difficult to screen it from the sidewalk.

“I don’t like this design,” Bolton said. “I think it looms over the street.”

Commissioners Stephanie Locke and Gail Lehman agreed that the building needs to be moved back from the street.

Free spirit

LEVI WAS a 9-month-old miniature Australian shepherd, living on a cement-scape yard in a rather rural setting, with a pitbull and a duck. Not one of them was well fed, and all were filthy. The people responsible for the trio moved away, taking the pitbull with them. That's when Levi landed on Craigslist. No one knows what happened to the duck.

Levi's person-to-be, whose roommate and her Australian shepherd had recently moved out of her Monterey home, was lamenting the departure of the Aussie. She vowed that if she ever got herself a dog, it would have to be an Australian shepherd.

She couldn't have imagined, when she decided to take a look at Craigslist, that she would land on Levi's photo, or that he would be a miniature Aussie. But she knew, the moment she saw his face, he was hers.

"I brought Levi home, put him in the tub, and gave him a bath," his person said. "He fell asleep in my lap as I was blow-drying his coat. And that's how the love affair started."

She actually had tried a different rescue dog before, but he'd snapped at her young grandson, so the dog had to go. Levi cuddles up with the little boy, who calls him, "Love Dog."

"Levi is special," his person said. "He looks us straight in the eyes and stares into our souls. And he picks up on my moods and seems to know just how to handle them."

If his person is having a down day, Levi will rest his head on her chest or lie nearby and stare at her, she says.

"But when we go to the beach," his person said, "Levi always runs like crazy after his tennis ball and jumps mid-air to catch it. People often video-record Levi in action. He's truly a free spirit."

Project pushing better race relations runs afoul of law targeting Alabama

By CHRIS COUNTS

A TEACHER who traveled from Sacramento to Selma, Alabama, to photograph its residents as part of a project promoting tolerance and acceptance had hoped to offset some of her travel expenses with funding from the State of California.

But Kathryn Mayo — whose exhibit, “We Are Selma: The Selma Portrait Project,” is on display at Carmel Visual Arts through the end of the month — was surprised to learn she couldn’t apply for the money because the California Legislature has banned state-funded travel to Alabama.

Passed in 2016, AB 1887 prohibits official or government-subsidized travel to eight states, including Alabama, because those states have passed laws that may discriminate against lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender people. (Last year, Alabama passed a law prohibiting homosexual and other non-traditional families from adopting children.)

‘It wasn’t about money’

Although the request was only for $500, Mayo didn’t back down from her insistence that she should be eligible for it — in large part because her project was aimed at improving race relations in Selma, a place with a long history of racism. She said the state eventually relented and gave her the money.

“It wasn’t about the money, but the principle,” said Mayo, who grew up in Selma and teaches at Cosumnes River College in Sacramento. “The law is very short-sighted on California’s part, and affects individuals in ways I’m not sure it was intended to.”

Besides calling attention to Selma’s troubled past, the project utilized a photographic technique known as wet plate collodion. Developed in the 1850s and popular for only about a decade, the process requires that the surface of the material used for a photograph be coated, sensitized, exposed and developed within the span of about 15 minutes. It also requires that a portable darkroom be used in the field. But the results are worth the extra effort. Carol Henry of Carmel Visual Arts called Mayo’s work “exquisite.”

While she was in Selma, Mayo took portraits of more than 70 residents of varying ages and backgrounds. “I photographed as much diversity as I could find,” she said.

Mayo also talked with the locals about their hopes for the future. “I asked every person what they are searching for, and again and again, they said ‘unity,’” she recalled.

Mayo said such unity is only possible if lines of communication between people of different backgrounds are improved, something she hopes her work can address.

“My project is a great way to start that dialogue,” she added. “If you can bring people together and talk, you’re going to break down stereotypes. But when the conversation is shut down, stereotypes perpetuate.”

‘Baboons for Lunch’

AN AUTHOR who has traveled to some of the world’s most remote places, James Michael Dorsey will sign copies of his new book, “Baboons for Lunch, and Other Sordid Adventures,” Sunday, July 15, from 4 to 6 p.m., at Riverhouse Books in the Crossroads shopping center.

According to Dorsey, the book contains 28 “rollicking stories.”

“The reader will ascend a volcano in Ethiopia under fire from bandits, cross the Sahara Desert with Tuareg nomads, enter the minefields of Cambodia, and be used as bait during a baboon hunt with a Stone-Age tribe in Tanzania,” Dorsey writes.

A resident of Culver City, Dorsey has visited 42 countries. www.riverhousebookscarmel.com

Police, Fire & Sheriff's Log

Could you be a bit more specific?

HERE'S A look at some of the significant calls logged by the Carmel-by-the-Sea Police Department and the Monterey County Sheriff's Office last week. This week's log was compiled by Mary Schley.

Pacific Grove: Officer dispatched to a residence on Spruce with Child Protective Services for alleged lewd and lascivious acts involving a child under the age of 14.

Pacific Grove: Citizen on Asilomar Blvd. was defrauded money.

WEDNESDAY, MAY 30

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Adult male, age 23, was arrested at Junipero and Sixth for two outstanding warrants, possession of a controlled substance, and possession of drug paraphernalia. Subject was cited and released.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Resident on Casanova south of Fourth reported fraudulent access to her computer and personal information and documents via a web scam.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Laptop computer was found in the roadway on San Carlos and Sixth in front of the fire department. The laptop was later returned to the owner.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Female reported leaving a tote bag of her clothing while visiting Carmel Beach.

Carmel Valley: A vehicle was towed from Ford Road for expired registration.

Big Sur: CPS referral on Old Coast Road.

Pacific Grove: Officer was dispatched after report of a theft on Congress Avenue.

Pacific Grove: Resident came to police department lobby to report a burglary on 19th Street with suspect information. Suspect identified as an 18-year-old male.

Pacific Grove: Possession of marijuana reported at Pacific Grove High School. Suspect identified as a 15-year-old juvenile.

THURSDAY, MAY 31

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Subject on Mission north of Fourth had complaints of pain and a metallic odor in her residence. Medical care was declined. Party had sought out medical care from healthcare providers and would continue to do so. Possible causes explained to the resident, who was directed to the appropriate professional resources for further assistance.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Employee of a business at Junipero and Sixth reported an ongoing workplace dispute with a colleague. Subject was contacted at work, but the other involved party was not available due to the work schedule. Owner of the business was advised regarding the dispute and initiated workplace conflict-resolution procedures.

Carmel-by-the-Sea: Shoplifting reported at Junipero and Sixth.

Pacific Grove: Non-injury collision on Lighthouse Avenue.

Carmel area: Female reported an adult female left her residence on San Juan Road and made vague statements.

Verdicts, pleas and sentencings announced by Monterey County District Attorney Dean Flippo

March 20 — Matthew Lee Loggins Jr., 36, was sentenced to five years in the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation by Monterey County Superior Court Judge Carrie M. Panetta.

On December 15, 2016, Salinas Police Department Violence Suppression Unit officers conducted a traffic stop on the vehicle Loggins was driving. The officers searched the vehicle and located a fully loaded, stolen semi-automatic firearm that was hidden inside the rear passenger-side seat of the vehicle. Officers also located 59.3 grams of heroin hidden inside the rear driver-side seat, and more than $1,500 in cash.

On February 8, Loggins entered pleas of no contest to one felony count of possession of a controlled substance with a firearm and one felony count of felon in possession of a firearm. Loggins also admitted a prior strike conviction for a robbery.

March 23 — Monterey County District Attorney Dean D. Flippo announced today that Lynnea Leticia Hernandez, age 21 and a resident of Cedar Park, Texas, was sentenced by Judge Julie Culver to 6 years, the upper term, in the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation for the March 21, 2016, collision that killed Nikolas Malliarodakis and Lillian Scott.

Hernandez previously pled guilty to one count of vehicular manslaughter with gross negligence for the death of Nikolas Malliarodakis, one count of vehicular manslaughter with gross negligence for the death of Lillian Scott, and two counts of reckless driving causing injury to her passengers Sydney Beyer, Guadalupe Valdez and Morgan Benninger.

On March 21, 2016, Hernandez and her friends, who were on spring break, decided to leave Santa Cruz for a daytrip to Big Sur. At approximately noon, the seven friends loaded into Hernandez's Lexus SUV and headed down Highway 1.

During their road trip the girls are seen on Snapchat dancing raucously, singing and passing around a marijuana pipe. Hernandez at one point is seen looking and singing into the video taking her eyes off the road and not paying attention to driving. At approximately 12:12 p.m., Hernandez crossed into oncoming traffic and hit the vehicle driven by Nikolas Malliarodakis, killing him instantly. Lillian Scott was seated in the middle backseat and was also killed instantly. The other passengers in the Hernandez's vehicle sustained major injuries because of the collision.

During the sentencing, Judge Culver addressed the family stating that this is such a horrible tragedy in which the impact is felt by all the family members involved, especially the Malliarodakis family which lost a "special soul who would light up any room he entered."

April 10 — Salomon Calderon Medina, 54, a Greenfield resident, entered a guilty plea on March 13 to residential burglary and two misdemeanors: unlicensed contracting and not having workers' compensation insurance.

The Monterey County District Attorney's Consumer Protection Unit began investigating Medina in response to a complaint from an elderly King City couple. The couple alleged that Mr. Medina approached them in a supermarket parking lot, where he offered his services as a contractor. Medina never disclosed that he was not a licensed contractor.

Believing Medina to be lawfully licensed to perform such services, the couple invited him into their home. Once inside the couple's residence, he again represented that he could remodel their bathroom and asked for $3,600 in professional fees. The couple paid him for the remodeling work.

Although he returned several days later with two workers and did general yard work, he never started the bathroom remodel and eventually abandoned the job. When the couple tried to contact him to get a refund, he ceased communicating with them.

During the investigation, it was determined that Medina had prior felony convictions for elder abuse, diversion of contractor funds and fraud. In light of his criminal record and the predatory nature of his interactions with the King City couple, the District Attorney charged Mr. Medina with a serious felony: residential burglary in violation of Penal Code section 459. Medina faces up to 4 years in state prison.

Water fee case filed with California Supreme Court

By KELLY NIX

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Taxpayers Association isn't giving up just yet. A loss by the group in an appellate court two months ago over a Monterey Peninsula Water Management District surcharge has prompted it to take its case to the California Supreme Court.

The dispute involves a surcharge the water district collects on property tax bills to help pay for Pure Water Monterey, a wastewater recycling project in Marina.

However, taxpayers association attorney Margaret Thum conceded that because of the California Supreme Court's caseload and limited resources, it's unlikely justices will accept the case for review.

"The odds are low that the Supreme Court will take the petition, but the taxpayers association believes it's in the community's best interest to try," Thum told The Pine Cone this week.

Since 2013, the association, led by Tom Rowley and Rick Heuer, has challenged the water district's authority to collect the fee, which amounts to about $3.5 million per year.

Approval before collecting

Among the questions the group asks in its 35-page petition to the Supreme Court is whether the water district has the authority to levy fees on property owners to pay for Pure Water Monterey, when the district is limited to assessing fees on companies that extract water, such as Cal Am; and whether the water district is required to get voter approval of projects before collecting fees to support them.

The taxpayer advocacy group sued the district after its board of directors rejected a referendum that sought to overturn the water charge, which had drawn widespread community opposition. After losing its case in Monterey County Superior Court to invalidate the surcharge and put the item before voters in the next election, the group appealed to the Sixth District Court of Appeal.

The review by the Supreme Court is necessary to resolve "important legal questions for the benefits of the community and the district, and to avoid waste of precious judicial resources," the group's petition said.

While the association contends the water management district isn't a water provider, like Cal Am, and therefore should not be allowed to levy fees, the district argues otherwise.

"The district does provide water supply and services," water district attorney David Laredo told The Pine Cone. "This has been validated by the California Public Utilities Commission through its regular direction to Cal Am to reimburse the district for water services, facilities and other support."

Laredo pointed to the decision by the appellate court, which upheld the superior court ruling that permitted the district to levy the charge.

"Just because the MPTA does not agree with these decisions does not provide a legal basis for the California Supreme Court to grant the petition for review," Laredo said. "The law is settled."

County cuts mayors water group funding

FACING A $36 million budget deficit, the County of Monterey has slashed its annual contribution to the Monterey Peninsula Regional Water Authority by nearly a third.

"Dire circumstances," the county said, would prohibit it from giving its share, which MPRWA director Jim Cullem said amounts to $88,160. The agency, which has been a leading advocate of a new water supply, has an annual budget of $290,000.

■ But more than enough restaurants have signed petition, backers say

By KELLY NIX

WHILE THE city's official marketing organization, called Visit Carmel, continues to gather support for the creation of separate agency just for restaurants, along with the imposition of a fee to pay for restaurant advertising and marketing, the owner of one of the village's best-known restaurants is waging a campaign to stop the effort.

Visit Carmel and a consultant who specializes in the creation of business improvement districts began circulating a petition May 16 in hopes of getting more than 50 percent of restaurant owners support for creation of their own improvement district. As of Wednesday, Visit Carmel executive director Amy Herzog said they've collected well over that amount.

"Many restaurateurs are truly excited about the possibilities a self-sustaining marketing program," Herzog said.

The owner of The Tuck Box, Jeff LeTowt, is not one of them, however. LeTowt, who has already urged dozens of restaurant owners not to sign the petition, said he plans on ramping up opposition to the district and its one-fourth of one percent assessment that would be added to restaurant checks.

"It was billed to me as, 'no cost to you,'" LeTowt said. "But the intent is to pass the cost on to customers in the form of a sales tax" — an idea he called, "terrible."

LeTowt said he has the support from numerous other restaurant owners who opposed the creation of the district and its proposed fee assessment, and he figures there are more.

"Management from Little Swiss Cafe, Treehouse Cafe and L'Auberge have contacted me with similar dislikes for the idea," he said, adding that Mulligan Public House is also not in favor of the proposal. "Customers I have talked to have expressed universal disapproval."

It doesn't matter that the assessment amounts to just 25 cents per $100, "it is still immoral to confiscate funds in this manner, and is equal to theft," said LeTowt, the eldest son of longtime downtown businessman Jody LeTowt.

And, he said, the city "already has a $1.1 million marketing budget."

While the cost of establishing the district is estimated at $39,000, Ken Spilfoegel, representing the restaurants in favor of the district, said the new tax would generate a minimum of $325,000 a year.

"The $325,000 is a projected annual amount and is based on the sales tax paid by the restaurants in the district over the past four quarters," Herzog said.

The funds from the assessment would be spent promoting Carmel's restaurants during midweek and the slow season, and trying to make the village a "culinary destination," she said

"In terms of attracting overnight visitors, Carmel-by-the-Sea is competing with destinations such as Napa and Santa Barbara, which have multimillion dollar marketing budgets,"

C.V. airport site should be open space, group says

By CHRIS COUNTS

A DECADE after a developer proposed building 29 single-family homes and 10 multi-family units on the 30-acre former Carmel Valley Airport site, a group of residents has launched an effort to buy the land and turn it into open space.

About 50 people met June 6 at the Carmel Valley Community Youth Center, where they formed a new group, Carmel Valley SOS (Save Our Open Space), to better organize their efforts. They also agreed to meet again June 19 at the same site.

The gathering, which starts at 6:30 p.m., will be hosted by the Carmel Valley Association. The CVA's president, Priscilla Walton, said her group is not leading the effort to acquire the property — only "facilitating" it.

Walton told The Pine Cone that the property — which is used like a park by many residents — is an "integral" part of Carmel Valley Village.

"People jog, walk and ride their horses there," Walton explained. "It's where Santa flies in, and it's used for emergencies. People use the space like an English common — they love it."

If the group is successful in its efforts to acquire the land, would it become a developed park or simply open space? Walton said most residents seemed to support the latter.

Supervisor Mary Adams said she is backing the drive to acquire the land.

"The 5th District office is really supportive of this effort," Adams said.

While the focus of the new group's work is to preserve the former airport as open space, Adams said there have also been talks about using a portion of the land as a site for an affordable housing project.

Adams said she and her aide, Kate Daniel, met with owner Alan Delfino not long before he died last year, and Adams said he expressed support for the property being used for a

Cal Am will lower rates because of tax cuts

■ But utility is also raising rates

By KELLY NIX

BRACE YOURSELVES: Customers of California American Water will see a decrease on their water bills.

Because of the recent overhaul of federal taxes — which reduced the corporate tax rate from 35 to 21 percent — privately owned electric, gas and water utilities, including Cal Am, are able to pass some of their tax savings on to their customers by reducing their rates.

“The Tax Cuts and Jobs Act will result in savings, 100 percent of which will be passed onto customers,” Cal Am spokeswoman Catherine Stedman told The Pine Cone.

The cuts have decreased the utility’s corporate taxes by $7.7 million across all its systems in California. Cal Am ratepayers will also see savings because of a state Public Utilities Commission decision in March that lowered the utility’s rate of return from 8.41 percent to 7.61 percent.

“What these two things mean specifically for Monterey Peninsula customers is the ability to reduce our revenue requirement in this area by more than $4 million,” Stedman explained.

Cal Am is just one of dozens of investor-owned utilities in the nation that have, or are planning to, cut rates to consumers because of the tax overhaul. A recent newspaper report, citing data from a tax reform group supportive of the tax cuts, said that more than 100 utilities have reduced their rates.

Precisely how much savings Cal Am customers will see isn’t yet known, but the Wall Street Journal has reported that reductions will amount to a few dollars on an average customer’s bill.

Unfortunately for ratepayers, Cal Am already has an application with the PUC to raise rates, so the savings may not be obvious if the PUC approves the increase. Cal Am requests rate hikes every three years.

“It is too early to tell the impact the decreased rates from lower federal taxes will have on Cal Am’s request for increased rates,” PUC spokeswoman Terrie Prosper told The Pine Cone. “When the proposed decision [is released] for public comment, the proposed rate impact will be included.”

Still, a reduction on customers’ bills due to the tax cuts and lower rate-of-return, is expected to help offset any increases.

The savings — including retroactive savings to Jan. 1, 2018 — will be announced the same time Cal Am’s new rates are announced, Stedman said.

“We don’t know precisely when the commission will issue a decision” on the new rates, she said, “but they have indicated fourth quarter of this year.”

Also worth noting is that Cal Am would be exempt from all income taxes if it were taken over by a public agency, which will be the subject of a measure on the November ballot.

public project. At the time, the land was listed for $3.3 million, Daniel recalled.

Walton said she was encouraged by the turnout at the first meeting.

“There is an enormous amount of enthusiasm about this,” she said. “We had people who were ready to write checks. I didn’t anticipate this response — it’s kind of exciting.”

Walton urged residents to get involved. “If you are interested in helping to save the Carmel Valley Airstrip, please attend the next meeting and lend your skills and energy to the effort,” she said.

Adams echoed Walton’s sentiments. “This is clearly going to take community involvement,” she added.

The airport was built by Byington Ford, who conceived of a neighborhood where residents flew small planes to work.

But the timing of its grand opening, — on Dec. 7, 1941 — couldn’t have been worse.

Ford’s dream never came to fruition, but the airport endured. The Delfino family, which owns the land today, bought it in 1953. The Monterey County Board of Supervisors attempted to close the airport in 2000, but a petition drive ended that threat, and the same year, the site was deemed a state historical resource. Still, two years later, it officially closed.

History studies turn into courtroom drama

By ELAINE HESSER

CLIFFORD JOHNSON is an inmate in Vacaville State Prison after being convicted of illegal possession of a firearm. He won't be there quite as long as everyone thought, though, thanks to a conversation he had with an All Saints' Day School student named Sam Schaeffer.

But let's start at the beginning. Tracy Schaeffer, Sam's mom, worked as a public defender in the prison system for many years, and did her level best to protect her son from the harsh realities of her job.

So, when the Carmel Valley resident told her he wanted to do his school History Day project on the 1971 riot in Attica prison in New York State, it came as a bit of a surprise.

It even surprised Sam. Initially, he was intrigued by a baseball field he saw on a tour of Alcatraz. As a great lover of the sport, he began investigating such fields at prisons around the country, and how baseball was often used as a reward for good behavior.

In the process, he came across accounts of the events at Attica, where inmates took 42 hostages and demanded better prison conditions for four days. The inmates killed one guard and three prisoners during the riot. Thirty-nine other people — nine correctional officers who had been held hostage and 30 inmates — were killed when the state police were sent in to quell the uprising.

While reading the history of the riot and prison reform efforts there and elsewhere, Sam said he was taken with both the amount of progress that has been made and with how much room there still was for improvement in the prison system. He dug into the issue for the better part of a year, and became passionate about learning more in the process — which is the point of the national academic competition.

Interviewing a prisoner

There are two History Day champions in each state in the middle school division, and Sam shared the title with Erin Jeon, a student from Orange County. State awards were presented at the beginning of May, and from June 10-14, Tracy, Sam, and his father, David, headed to Washington, D.C. for the national championship.

Judging at both state and national levels is done live and in-person. First, the students

Two more ceremonies in a long history of pomp

By ELAINE HESSER

MILITARY CEREMONIES and rituals can be beautiful and fascinating — all those flags, colorful uniforms and glittering brass, the patriotic music and the bugle calls and sometimes, even cannon fire.

Changes of command are no exception, but having two such large events in one day on one military post is a rarity. That's what happened on June 12, at the Presidio of Monterey, when both the Defense Language Institute and the base it sits on got new commanders.

Not everyone is aware those two things are separate, but according to the presidio's Public Affairs Office, the commander who runs the base is "responsible for the planning, coordination and execution of all infrastructure and base operations support," including some activities on the former Fort Ord.

And of course, DLI is, as it likes to say, "the Department of Defense's premier foreign language provider to military service members."

At 1 p.m., the ceremony to transfer command of the Presidio of Monterey Garrison from Col. Lawrence Brown, who's been in charge since 2016, to Col. Greg Ford. Both men have long and distinguished resumes with multiple deployments and awards, as do outgoing DLI Commandant Col. Phil Depert and his successor, Col. Gary Hausman.

Their ceremony began at 4 p.m. Hundreds of service members, civilians who work at the presidio and invited guests attended each ceremony, along with the historic re-enactors portraying mounted troops from the 11th Armored Cavalry Regiment, once stationed at the Presidio from 1919 to 1942.

Not unlike a presidential inauguration, the change of command symbolizes the orderly transfer of authority and responsibility that has carried on throughout American military history.

at Junipero," Locke said. "If they are going to do extensive additions to the building, they should be done to the southeast portion of the building."

Lehman didn't like the proposal of using trees, planted in bump-outs, as a way of screening the building since it would mean the loss of parking.

"I think it's a terrible idea to lose three or four parking spaces, as it is really hard to park in this town," Lehman said.

Public works director Bob Harary said that while it's likely some parking spaces will be eliminated, it's not clear how many, since the landscaping plan has not been finished.

Dedicated for police vehicles

Commissioner Julie Wendt said she's in favor of functionality over landscaping, but liked the idea of the tree bump-out as a way of "softening" the design. She wasn't too concerned about the loss of parking spaces that would result.

"The parking spaces in front of the police station are dedicated for just police vehicles," she said. "They can park anywhere, right?"

While Locke called the proposal "piecemealing," and said the remodel should be done in a concept "that takes Carmel forward for another 50 years," chair Michael LePage said, adding on to the existing police department building is the "logical" approach.

There were other comments about the aesthetics of the building, including from resident Mike Brown, who called the design an "ugly box." But LePage said he appreciated the architect's contemporary design.

"This is contemporary architecture with a reference to the historical materials that represent what's used to build in our community; wood, stone," he said. "That's how you make the connection to this community."

LePage also noted that it's a municipal building, and requires "space laid out in an organized, coherent way. Rectangular or box is the best way to do that. Those aren't necessarily dirty words. That's what most buildings are."

Apart from recommending the architect consider the design changes over setback, parking, and patio, among other things, Locke requested the commission be given a conceptual landscape plan, which LePage said would "give the public a much better understanding of how the final landscape is going to interact with the building."

Gary Breschini, author, archaeologist and Esselen expert, dies at 71

By CHRIS COUNTS

BEST KNOWN for his extensive work studying Monterey County's earliest people, archaeologist Gary Breschini died June 5 in Salinas. He was 71.

For much of his life, Breschini researched and wrote about the contents of archaeological sites throughout the region. He and his wife, Trudy Haversat, assessed properties for cultural resources as part of the local building permit processes and EIR requirements.

Along with Glen B. Wilson, Breschini and Haversat co-wrote a book on one of his favorite topics, "Esselen Indians of the Big Sur Country." And along with Mona Gudgel, Breschini and his wife are also listed as co-authors of two books in the

"Images of America" series, "Early Salinas" and "Spreckels."

The couple also taught classes about the Esselen people at the Tassajara Zen Mountain Center in Upper Carmel Valley.

Breschini grew up in Corral de Tierra and attended Salinas schools. Besides being an outdoor enthusiast, he took up fencing as a young man, and was a state saber champion in college.

He also played a leadership role with several groups, serving as president of the Monterey County Historical Society

William (Bill) E. Callahan, Jr.

March 13, 1934 - June 1, 2018
Carmel, California

William (Bill) E. Callahan, Jr. died June 1, 2018, at Westland House, Monterey, California. William was born March 13, 1934, in Salinas, California.

Bill attended Sacred Heart Grammar School and Gonzales High School and after graduation went into the U.S. Army during the Korean War.

For fifty years Bill was owner of Callahan Construction Company in Carmel, California and built some beautiful homes in the Carmel, Monterey and Murphy cities, taking great pride in his workmanship.

As a young man he enjoyed spending time with his father training Springer Spaniels for field trials and all of their hunting trips. Bill is pre-deceased by his parents William E. Callahan, Sr. and Frances Nason Callahan. He was fifth generation of Monterey County, California.

Bill is survived by his wife of 25 years, Nancy Gaylord-Callahan; son David Callahan; sister Kathleen A. Callahan; step-son David DiRienzo; granddaughters Hailey DiRienzo and Grace Callahan. He is also survived by nieces and nephews Colleen, Colette, Dennis and Daniel Titgen.

There will be a Celebration of Life June 23rd at 3 p.m. for Bill at the American Legion Post 512, Dolores and Eighth, Carmel, California. Please don't wear black as we are to celebrate Bill's life!

JEANETTE WRIGHT

1941 ♦ 2018

Jeanette Wright (nee Dummigan), long-time resident of Carmel, California, passed away Sunday, May 20, 2018, in Port Townsend, Washington.

Jeanette was born in Belfast, Northern Ireland on Oct. 28, 1941.

Jeanette is survived by son Kevin Wright, of Havasu City, Arizona, sister Margaret Kirk of Port Townsend, Washington, and brothers George Dummigan of Bruckless, Co. Donegal, Ireland, and Tony Dummigan of Port Townsend, Washington.

David Penn Soskin

August 18, 1976 - June 6, 2018

David Penn Soskin, beloved son, brother and uncle, died June 6, 2018 while recovering from brain tumor surgery and courageously battling depression. Deeply compassionate and a gifted psychiatrist, he was adored by family, friends, patients, and co-workers. He brought healing energy and brilliance to so many. While serving for three years as Medical Director of the Behavioral Health Department in Monterey County, he was a mentor and teacher to doctors and staff, a friend to his patients, and especially committed to caring for the underserved.

David had a beautiful mind and was a man of many passions. He loved to run and hike, to surf, to write, to think, and to teach others. He loved basketball, Rumi's poetry, Tolstoy's novels, and health food (especially his daily yogurt and almonds). David spent glorious times vacationing with family and friends in Costa Rica and San Diego, and loved his long runs over Soberanes in Big Sur and on the snowy streets of Cambridge.

David will be especially remembered for his kindness and compassion. It was important to him to be there for those closest to him as well as for perfect strangers. He adored his family and his rescue dog, Georgette. He was an exceptional listener. David was a beautiful man with a beautiful soul, and his smile would light up the room.

David attended local schools and, after graduation from York School, he received his BA and MD from Harvard University. He completed his residency at Harvard/Mass General. David served on the faculty at Harvard Medical School and was the author of numerous articles and books. He received honors throughout his career for his teaching excellence and created innovative tools to improve psychiatric training.

He is survived by his parents Bill and Marian, his brother Josh and sister-in-law Grace Jackson, his niece Eleanor, his partner Mary Pennington, and his loving pet, Georgette.

May his memory be a blessing and may his light continue to shine in the lives of those he touched.

To honor his memory, the family suggests contributions to local or national suicide prevention programs.

Crista Vonee' (Cox) Natale

Sept. 2, 1968 - May 2, 2018

Crista passed away very suddenly and unexpectedly on May 2. She was 49. Crista was born September 2, 1968 to Jim and Barbara Cox. She attended Del Monte Elementary School in Monterey, then moved with her family to Glen Deven Ranch in Big Sur and attended Carmel schools, graduating from Carmel High in 1986. She worked as a dental assistant for the late Dr. Don Satow, and she also worked at Café Stravaganza, and the Monterey Jet Center. She married Joe Natale Jr. in 1993, and they had two sons, Joey and Jonny. Crista and Joe eventually moved their family to Redding, where she worked at Dry Creek Station restaurant, and the Redding Municipal Airport. She was fiercely devoted to her two boys, and her greatest joy was spending time with them. She had an open-door policy for all of her boys' friends, and she left an indelible mark on all who came through her door. She enjoyed boating on Lake Shasta, long walks with her dogs who she loved dearly, and flying by private plane or glider plane in the skies above the Redding area.

She is survived by her sons Joey (fiancee' Charli Edwards) and Jonny Natale, of Redding; parents Jim and Barbara Cox of Big Sur; sisters Lisa (husband Greg) Babaian of Salinas; and Heather Caylor of Big Sur; nephews Matthew Babaian of Salinas, Nicholas Babaian of Boston, MA; and Tristan Babaian of Chico. She is also survived by her beloved pit bull dogs Brody, aka "Precious," and Moto.

A celebration of Crista's life will be held on Saturday, June 16 at 2 p.m. at the home of her sister and brother-in-law, Lisa and Greg Babaian. For details, email Heather at saphiire54@me.com

Diane Lynne Bohl

Diane Lynne Bohl passed away June 6, 2018, after a brief but intense battle with brain cancer in Carmel, California. She was predeceased by her parents Edward C. and June S. Bohl and her sister Deborah Lee Bohl.

Born in Syracuse, Diane moved to Guilderland, New York at a young age and graduated early from Guilderland schools. She went on to earn degrees in Mathematics from Boston University. She worked at MIT in Boston for over 20 years. While on sabbatical in 1988 she found the place and the man she fell in love with in Big Sur, California. Moving to Carmel in 1992, she started a new chapter in her life and became co-owner of the Post Ranch Mercantile, which she ran until 2014.

Diane is survived by her sister Theresa J. Bohl of Saratoga Springs, New York, her partner of 30 years, George K “Mickey” Muennig of Big Sur, California and her beloved dog Habiba.

Services and burial at Prospect Hill cemetery in Guilderland will be private.

Charlie Page

April 18, 1929-June 7, 2018

Charlie Page, long-time attorney, city councilman and contributor to a variety of organizations and causes on the Monterey Peninsula died of natural causes Thursday, June 7. He was 89 years old.

Charles Henry Page was born on April 18, 1929 to Earl and Maggie Parrish Page in Durham, North Carolina. Much of his youth was spent in the company of Maggie’s family, eight brothers and sisters whose lives were anchored around the family tobacco farm in the small hamlet of Stem, about 20 miles north of Durham. Among the colorful characters who made up that family, one of Charlie’s favorites was his Uncle Smerden Parrish who operated one of Stem’s two general stores, across the street from his competitor, Lewis Gooch.

Earl Page was a journeyman carpenter and often out of work. When Charlie was in high school the family moved to Sandusky, Ohio where he was often forced to fend for himself economically.

Over the course of his school career, he delivered lunch to a blind man who paid him 25 cents a week and delivered telegrams as a Western Union Boy. He worked as a soda jerk, a warehouse boy, a theater usher, a lady’s shoe salesman, a laundry clerk, furniture store salesman, a day laborer, a carpenter’s apprentice, and a fireman on the Pennsylvania Railroad, among a litany of other odd jobs he took to cobble together a living. His humble upbringing would never have foretold his prestigious career path, and he never, ever forgot his good fortune for where his education and career took him.

After graduating from high school, Charlie enrolled in Miami University of Ohio. The Miami football coach at the time was future Ohio State legend Woody Hayes and among Charlie’s fraternity brothers was Hayes’ future Michigan rival Bo Schembechler.

One weekend Charlie and his friends visited a dance at the neighboring women’s school, Western College. There he became enamored with the campus social director, Caroline Randolph and they soon became an item.

Charlie’s early college career was not marked by academic excellence and when the Korean War broke out he enlisted in the US Air Force. Soon after he proposed to Caroline and she accepted. The idea of marriage to a college drop-out and junior airman was less well received in Caroline’s home town of Burlington, Iowa where her mother’s family were prominent retailers and her father was an international diplomat. On their wedding day there were plenty of tears...not all for the same reason. After basic training, Charlie was assigned to the Defense Language Institute at the Presidio in Monterey, California, where he received training in Russian in preparation for an intelligence posting in Cambridge, England.

When his Air Force stint was complete, Charlie returned to Miami University where he pursued his studies with a vigor that had not been evident in his first tour. So impressed were a couple of his professors, they helped him engineer a successful application to Stanford University in a unique program where he was able to complete his bachelor’s degree at the same time as his first year of law school. He eventually graduated with honors and was named managing editor of the Stanford Law Review.

During his stint at the DLI, Charlie had fallen in love with the Monterey Peninsula and upon graduating from Stanford he accepted a job as an associate with the firm of Hoge, Fenton, Jones & Appel, working closely with his mentor and life-long friend Lewis Fenton. Charlie spent his entire career with the firm and its successor, Fenton & Keller where he grew to be a sought-after specialist in tax, real estate and land-use law. Among his clients were The Pebble Beach Company and movie legend Clint Eastwood.

Charlie retired from his law practice in 1993, but his long history in community service continued for many years after retirement. He served two separate terms on the Monterey City Council, served on the board of directors and as the president of the Association of Monterey Bay Area Governments, was a founder of the Monterey College of Law and the Monterey County Legal Aid Society, served on boards and as an officer on several local non-profit organizations, was on the Board of Trustees and served as president of the Big Sur Land Trust, served as chair of a special task force regarding the 1994-95 floods, was on the founding board of Cypress Fire Protection District, and was foreman on the 1996 Civil Grand Jury. He also served two terms on the Monterey Peninsula College Board of Trustees where Charlie and his wife Caroline initiated and helped fund the startup of the Monterey Peninsula College Foundation.

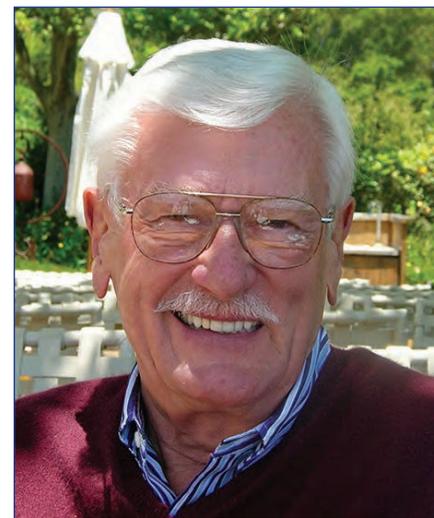

In 1992, Charlie received the Chief Justice Gibson award, presented to the attorney who best represents commitment to community service and high legal standards, as set by the award’s namesake the late presiding justice of the California Supreme Court. In 2015 he was recipient of the President’s Award from Monterey Peninsula College.

Among Charlie’s family and friends, he will be remembered for his generosity, wit and love of life. He always referred to himself as Mr. Lucky, noting how he had emerged from humble beginnings and always mindful of the many blessings he had enjoyed over the course of his life, from a rewarding career, wonderful family and friends and the opportunity to enjoy the unique joys of life on the Monterey Peninsula. Although he had occasion to travel worldwide, he always felt a special passion for the region where he spent most of his life, from sunsets overlooking Carmel Valley and Point Lobos, New Year’s Day hikes to the top of Jack’s Peak to weekends at his beloved Tassajara Zen Center, Charlie and his family made the most of their time in this special place.

Charlie lost his first wife Caroline to cancer in 2001. Charlie and his second wife Linda enjoyed 16 years of marriage, traveling and spending time in the company of good friends and family. Charlie is survived by four sons, Stephen, David, Christopher and Jeffrey, six grandchildren, Kevin, Justin, Kiavash, Shaheen, Niku and Claudine Page, and daughters-in-law Judy and Farnoosh Page and Lisa Berry. David’s wife Heather Page was lost to cancer in 2016. Charlie is also survived by stepson AJ Prolo, step daughter Kristine Jordan and step grandchildren Lauren Prolo, Eyrika Collins and Nicole, Ben and Amina N’Gambwa.

Friends are invited to a celebration of Charlie Page’s life to be held at the Beach Club on Saturday, July 7 at 5:00 pm.

In lieu of flowers, Charlie’s family suggests a donation in his name to the Monterey Peninsula College Foundation.

Herzog explained. “The successful formation of an RID not only elevates the restaurants but is forward-thinking for the entire destination.”

The restaurant improvement district would include all the full-service restaurants in Carmel-by-the-Sea, but not coffee shops, delis and specialty food stores. If it comes to fruition, a restaurant committee would be formed separate from the Visit Carmel board of directors.

“That committee will be responsible for managing the funds and making the decisions and direction regarding marketing,” Herzog told The Pine Cone.

Spilfogel said the restaurant improvement district would help “elevate the culinary community” in the town, and offer a say for restaurant owners.

Despite some opposition to the proposal, Herzog said that a majority of the city’s restaurateurs are onboard with the plan.

“The city has received signed petitions from more than 65 percent of the restaurants in town, well past the 50 percent needed to move the process forward,” she said.

The program is modeled after Carmel’s hospitality improvement district, which levies an additional percentage on hotel guests and passes the funds, via the city, to Visit Carmel for marketing campaigns and other efforts.

The goal, Herzog said, is to collect all the petitions by June 15, although she said they could be turned in up until the public hearing in the fall.

‘Weaponize’

If the district is approved, LeTowt said he’ll continue to try to stop it.

“If it passes, I plan to weaponize the Restaurant Improvement District against those who voted for it,” LeTowt said. “Perhaps advertise a list of those restaurants that did not sign on, and include a detailed explanation of those who would rather have their customers pay for their shortcomings.”

LeTowt said the district’s proposed “collective marketing” plan won’t likely help already struggling restaurants, and the problem is there are simply too many places in town to eat.

“The city is oversaturated with restaurants, and the overall quality of food is not competitive with other markets,” he said. “Punishing customers is not going to help.”

“If all stays on track and the [restaurant district] is formed, assessments are set to begin on January 1, 2019,” Herzog said.

The city would be responsible for collecting the gross food and drink sales revenue assessment on a quarterly basis, including any delinquencies, penalties and interest, from each restaurant within the district.

You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder’s office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 800-280-2832 for information regarding the trustee’s sale or visit this Internet Web site <http://www.qualityloan.com>, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-15-688541-CL. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. If the sale is set aside for any reason, including if the Trustee is unable to convey title, the Purchaser at the sale shall be entitled only to a return of the monies paid to the Trustee. This shall be the Purchaser’s sole and exclusive remedy. The purchaser shall have no further recourse against the Trustor, the Trustee, the Beneficiary, the Beneficiary’s Agent, or the Beneficiary’s Attorney. NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE of MAXINE LINGENFELTER Case Number 18PR000244
To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate, or both, of PHYLLIS DECKER. LINGENFELTER.
A PETITION FOR PROBATE has been filed by DONALD B. LINGENFELTER and NANCY BACKBERG and LINDA McCLEERY, PRO PER in the Superior Court of California, County of MONTEREY.
The Petition for Probate requests that DONALD B. LINGENFELTER be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
THE PETITION requests the decedent’s will and codicils, if any, be admitted to probate. The will and any codicils are available for examination in the file kept by the court.
THE PETITION requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows:
Date: Aug. 22, 2018
Time: 9:00 a.m.
Dept.: 13
Address: Superior Court of California, County of Monterey, 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, CA 93940. Probate Department 13. Hon. Vanessa W. Vallarta.
If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law.
You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

JURY

procedure by not requiring a substantial deposit from the developer" to cover the city's expenses related to the hotel proposal. City officials displayed a "lack of transparency" about the project, the jury said. Project Bella's developer, Domaine Pacific Grove, also never filed a valid building application, the grand jury said.

"The jury does not doubt that the city entered into Project Bella with the best of motivations," the report concludes. "However, the project was pursued without due diligence."

Warning signs

Pacific Grove, the report says, also failed to conduct a background investigation of Domaine or its principals to determine "financial strength or previous experience in completing a comparable project."

Almost from the outset, there were warning signs about the project — things which neither Pacific Grove's planning staff nor the council seemed to take notice of.

In December 2016, The Pine Cone published an article outlining concerns expressed by former Domaine business partner Michael Crall, who called the management of the project "amateurish," and said he was not confident a hotel would be built under their leadership.

That same month, The Pine Cone reported a bankruptcy filed by Jill Athalie Meer, the wife of Domaine President and CEO Ron Meer, in which she claimed liabilities of more than $400 million — stemming mostly from real estate projects in which her husband was involved.

And when asked in late 2016 if he was aware of the bankruptcy filing, and if it concerned him, Pacific Grove Mayor Bill Kampe said that P.G. would "take care to protect the financial interests of the city" and would "be very careful to follow procedural requirements at every stage."

However, the grand jury said contracts for Project Bella were written and rewritten many times, with different terms being added and deleted. Some documents were signed, while others were not. As a result, "there never was a legal Project Bella," and the "lack of careful preparation proved fatal" for the development proposal, the jury said.

'Conflict of interest'

While Kampe did not respond to questions from The Pine Cone this week about the grand jury report, he issued a statement.

"We have received the report and are in the process of reviewing it," Kampe said. "We will prepare a response to meet the required deadline."

The jury began its query into Project Bella after a citizen complained about the city's handling of the proposal and alleged that city manager Ben Harvey had accepted gifts and cash from the developer.

The grand jury, though, found that Harvey did not accept gifts from Domaine, and that a $50,000 reimbursement check from Domaine that was lost in the shuffle was not the result of misappropriation. The check was later accounted for.

An investigation by Jackson Lewis, a law firm the city paid to investigate its handling of Project Bella, made essentially the same conclusions.

However, the grand jury was critical of Harvey's $1,425-per-month membership in Surf Air, an air travel service he joined after an invitation from friend Jared Ficker — a subcontractor for Project Bella. Harvey joined Ficker's group, of which Meer was also a member.

"As a result of Mr. Harvey's participation in this membership, [Harvey] shared flights with Mr. Ficker and Mr. Meer," the jury said. "While there is nothing illegal about this, the appearance of a conflict of interest was inescapable."

As part of his employment agreement, Pacific Grove paid Harvey $3,000 monthly for housing and transportation, which allowed Harvey to pay for the flights so he could visit his school-age children in Southern California on the weekends.

Harvey, who in 2016 earned $189,807.36 in pay and benefits, also receives a $500 car allowance.

The city "also agreed to reimburse him for his personal travel expenses associated with these trips," the report said.

'Ethical standards' questioned

Harvey's use of the air service, the jury found, "showed a remarkable lack of sensitivity to ethical standards expected of all members of public employment."

It was also much more expensive and less convenient to use the service instead of flying commercial out of Monterey, since Harvey would often take $98 Uber rides from Pacific Grove to San Carlos or Santa Clara, the location of the two Surf Air jet centers, the jury said.

Unrelated to Project Bella but nonetheless intriguing, the grand jury said Harvey told them that the city agreed to a "unique employment agreement" which allowed him to travel on Fridays — a perk that was not included in his work contract available for public review.

Though Kampe and Harvey declined to say if Harvey usually has Fridays off, Kampe said the city manager works on the weekends.

"Whether our city manager is in Pacific Grove or Southern California, his work for the city continues," Kampe said. "And I should mention that we know that he invests time frequently on weekends for the benefit of the city."

It's unclear why the benefit was not included in Harvey's employment contract.

The report also delves into other aspects of Harvey's employment with the city.

Citing a November 2017 grand jury interview with former P.G. city manager Tom Frutchey, the jury report said Ficker, the Domaine subcontractor, "expressed strong support" for Harvey for the position of city manager after Frutchey announced he was leaving the post.

"In the jury's opinion, it appears that Mr. Harvey had an advantage in competing for the position of city manager," the grand jury claimed.

However, the grand jury failed to explain how Ficker's support of Harvey could have allowed him to get an upper hand over other applicants vying for the job.

In response to an interview request Tuesday, Harvey provided The Pine Cone with a statement, which references the results of the Jackson Lewis investigation that concluded there was no evidence of malfeasance.

Harvey said that the release of the grand jury report has prompted the city council to direct Jackson Lewis to review the document to determine whether there is a basis to "reopen the matter" or "modify" any of its own findings or recommendations.

"Until the response of the city's special counsel is received, there is no basis for further comment," Harvey said.

When fully built, Project Bella was predicted to generate as much as $3.6 million in annual transient occupancy taxes for Pacific Grove.

It would also provide a significant boost to the entire city, in the form of spillover business to restaurants, retail stores and service providers from the hotel's guests. In April 2016, voters approved a zoning change to allow a hotel to be considered on the American Tin Cannery property.

older — it's really kind of sad to think about.”
 McCall reported the incident to Pebble Beach Co. security, the Monterey County Sheriff's Office and Monterey County Animal Control.
 According to McCall, the owner of the great Danes is out of town, and the dogs are being cared for by someone else.

 Looking back on the attack, McCall said Emma is lucky to be alive. He wonders what the outcome would have been had he been elderly, like many of the residents who walk dogs in the neighborhood.
 “Had I been less capable, I honestly believe it would have been tragic,” he suggested.
 McCall said he learned from others that the great Danes have previously been seen roaming the neighborhood. “I find it very hard to believe that this is the first time these dogs have acted in this way,” he said.

 McCall also provided the name of the person he believes is the owner, but The Pine Cone is not using it because the information could not be independently confirmed.
‘Out of control’
 A Carmel woman, Laurie Segale, said she has encountered the same three dogs on Carmel Beach. Segale described them as “scary,” and noted she's never seen them leashed.
 Another woman said she's observed the three dogs on the beach many times, and she called them “out of control.”

 “They frighten me,” she said.
 McCall said he's hopeful that by calling attention to the incident, authorities will do something about it. “My only reason for wanting to share this story is to help prevent it from happening again,” he added.
 An animal control representative did confirm the details of the incident, but wouldn't comment further due to a pending investigation.

After suffering a vicious attack by three unleashed dogs in Pebble Beach, Emma was stitched up and is now recuperating at home.

DALLAS

sit unused. While the council in January voted to seek proposals from “curators” who might be willing to live in it rent-free while restoring it, or people who want to buy the house but lease the land underneath it, Dallas said he and the council need to know what, exactly, their options are.

“We need to see what the court said,” Dallas said, referring to a judge’s finding that the environmental impact report prepared for the proposed sale of the mansion — an idea approved by voters by a two-thirds margin in 2009 — was inadequate.

He also said he wants to see a program of “routine maintenance for all buildings and natural resources” in town, and a two-year budget, instead of a single year, as is done now.

Like Gene Hughes, who announced last week that he will seek the mayor’s seat in November, Dallas said he favors undergrounding utility lines — and would start with those at the foot of Ocean Avenue. “We’ve done the North Dunes,” he said, referring to plant restoration efforts underway there. “And to me, it finishes off the whole picture.” He said he has a good relationship with PG&E that could help see that work, which is expensive, come to fruition.

As mayor, Dallas savors the chance to show schoolkids a little bit about how local government works. It was the students at River School who pushed for the plastics ban that became law this year, and he said he enjoys “teaching the next generation to be good stewards of the village.”

“It’s fun,” he said, adding that the best reasons for him to be re-elected are his “love of the village” and his ability to “get things done.”

‘Everybody treated equally’

In the past two years, Dallas said he’s learned “to listen as much as you can and uphold the rules of the city and do what’s best for Carmel-by-the-Sea.”

“Everybody is treated equally, with no favoritism,” he said, though some have perceived his opposition to certain projects, like restaurateur David Fink’s condo and the Cantinetta Luca trash enclosure, as being more personal than anything else.

Perceptions that Dallas and his council aren’t business friendly are wrong, he said.

“Some people say we don’t have a working relationship with business, but I think we have a great relationship with business,” he said. “Our village will always be cute, but we need to keep those little businesses filled.”

Dallas said he hopes to continue working with the council, which he sees as an effective team, and to maintain the transparency he said has been part of his administration since the start.

“You have to balance four other council members,” he said. “You want to hear all their points of view, and they all specialize in certain things. I really want the team to be a team, but we’re not going to be perfect together.”

It could happen

BY NOW you've surely heard that you'll be voting on a ballot measure in November that calls for California to be split into three states. Crazy, right?

Carmel would be in the smallest of the proposed states, which would still be called California, and would consist of just six counties along the coast from Los Angeles to Monterey. The new Northern California would include the San Francisco Bay area, Sacramento and 40 surrounding counties, while Southern California would stretch from the Mexican border to Gold Country and have San Diego as its main population center.

Since the measure qualified for the ballot, it's been the subject of quite a bit of arched-eyebrow analysis, with pundits across the country analyzing its potential impacts on everything from the water supply (our state would have much less than it has today, while the other two would be water rich), to who might qualify for in-state tuition at places like Fresno State and UCLA. And their opinions all come down to the same thing: Splitting California in three pieces would be a very bad idea.

But we disagree. Local government is always more efficient and more answerable to the public than government in faraway capitals. God knows California is a political mess — and it must have been for a very long time, considering that more than 200 efforts have been made to split it up since it was admitted to the Union in 1850. Whether you're talking about planning and development, finance, law enforcement or whatever, splitting California into more manageable pieces would have to be better for most of the people who live here.

But all that is small potatoes compared to what would actually be at stake if California became three states: its influence on national politics.

Presently, while California has 53 congressional districts, it has just two senators. But if it split, while it would still have 53 representatives in the House (pending the next census, of course), it would have a total of six senators, increasing the power of California in the Senate threefold. That is very significant. And equally important: It would give California four more votes in the Electoral College. Both changes would give the Democratic Party substantially more power in Washington than it has today.

Considering how polarized national politics are, we think that issue might be paramount in the minds of voters when they decide whether to support the measure to split the state in three. It also might provide enough momentum in the state legislature for them to OK the idea.

And if the idea gets to Congress, what happens there might very well be determined by which party is in charge.

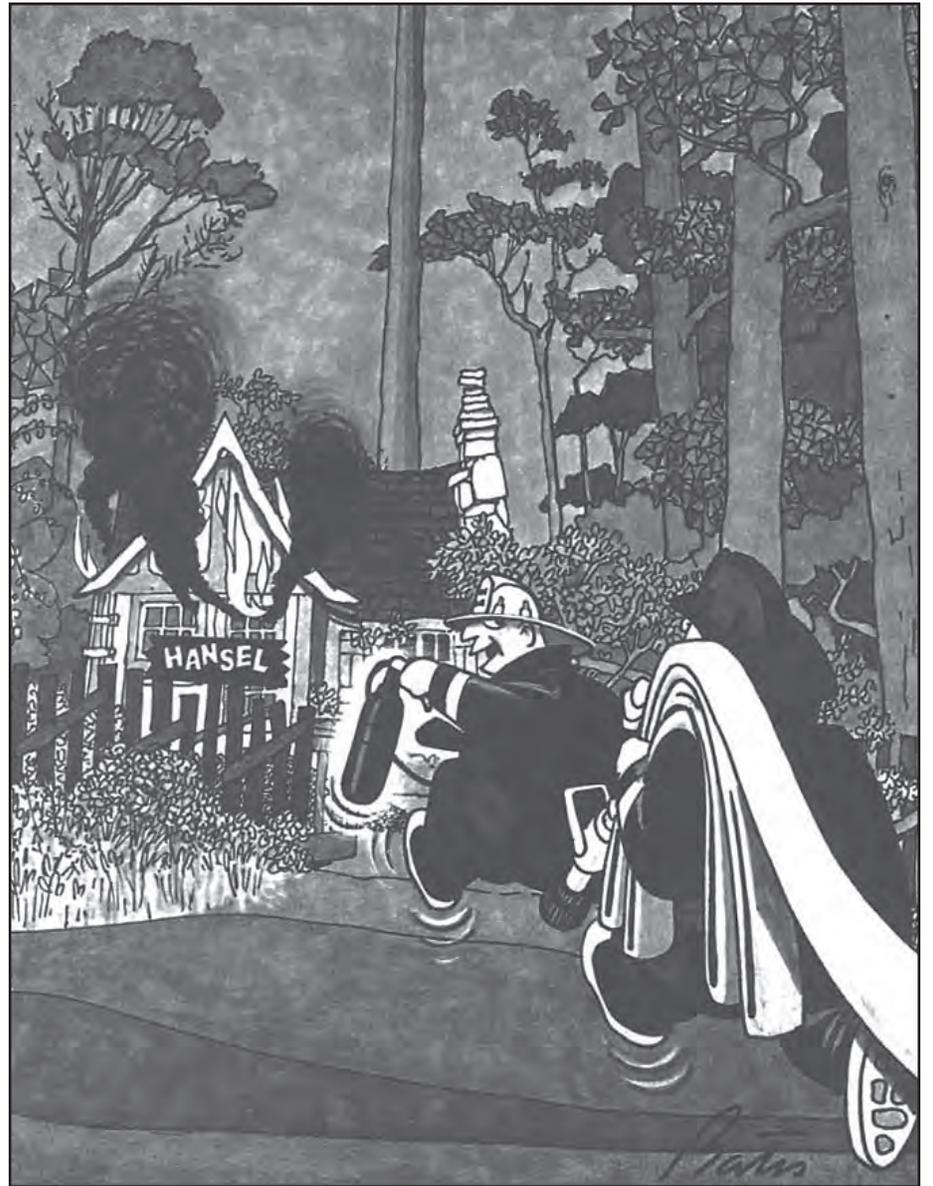

We say that because, as they are now configured, all three proposed states would have solid Democratic majorities. They all supported Hillary Clinton in the 2016 election, by majorities ranging from 73 percent to 26 percent in our part of the state, 70 percent to 30 percent in the proposed Northern California, and 55 percent to 45 percent in what would be Southern California.

Right now, in the Republican-controlled Senate and House of Representatives, the majority regards California's dominant political views as worse than Lenin's, and the idea of giving California more power would be laughed right out of the building.

But if the Democrats are returned to power in the Senate and House in the November elections, they might give the idea of three Californias a much more favorable hearing.

Our state will never secede from the Union. The Electoral College will never go away. Both ideas are procedurally or politically impossible under the U.S. Constitution. But, while it may be unlikely, dividing up this monster state is not that far-fetched.

Doesn't like color

Dear Editor,

How on earth did the city ever OK the color of the Golden Bough? You don't notice much from the front, but from the side it looks like someone has slathered Dijon mustard gone bad on 1,000 square feet of wall. And unfortunately, I just happen to live next door.

When the sun shines on it, it almost glows, enough so that my frosted window on that side of the house is now yellow-orange all the time. And from my deck, all I see is the wall. Maybe I can build a trellis tall enough to get something growing so I will see only 6 feet or so of it. With something that size it would have been nice to choose a color for the side walls that blended in with nature and use the gold on the front of both. Drive by on Casanova, but make sure to wear your sunglasses — and be thankful it is not in your neighborhood.

Lynn Blair, Carmel

Heartfelt thanks

Dear Editor,

The 15th "A Table Affair," held May 31 at the Inn at Spanish Bay, was a truly celebratory occasion. The wonderful array of imaginative and creative tables brought real delight to the very large number of visitors.

Participants designing the tables were individuals or non-profit organizations who benefited from the exposure. It was a fun, colorful afternoon bringing residents of the Monterey Peninsula together. As always, there was no charge to attend the event, but donations were respectfully requested for the designated beneficiary of the year, which in 2018 was Peace of Mind Dog Rescue, which concentrates on rescuing older dogs from shelters and finding them homes. In addition, Peace of Mind assists elderly residents to care for their pets and in the event of the owner being unable to keep the pet, the organization will find a new home for them.

The cost of staging "A Table Affair" is covered by generous donations from members of the community. If the amount donated exceeds expenses, the credit balance is given to the beneficiary of the year.

I would like to thank everyone who contributed to the success of this year's event, the table designers, the volunteers, the donors, the representatives from Peace of Mind and the wonderful visitors who made very generous donations.

Officer and gentleman finds his drawl and discipline go a long way

HIS FATHER was a POW in World War II, and the stories he told shaped his life. John Dillard said, "People are an investment," he says, "both in who you choose to spend your time with and helping others."

Dillard has lived by that principle, and it's led him to some places he didn't always expect.

Born and raised in Richmond, Va., John — known to many as "Uncle John" — is a child of the South and a true southern gentleman, from his dapper style to his laconic drawl. "My first job was delivering groceries and medicine to people on my bike," he said.

Although he started at the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga as a pre-med student, he switched courses after falling in love with the Army as part of the Reserve Officers Training Corps, a program for college students interested in the military. He was commissioned as an Airborne Ranger in the Army after graduating from the University of Tennessee at Chattanooga. But his passion for medicine never waned, and he frequently researches the health concerns of friends and family, often providing thoughtful insight and guidance.

'The yin to his yang'

As a career Army officer, Dillard was stationed all over the country, moving every two or so years. While stationed at Picatinny in New York early in his career, he met Fran — a local woman working as a member of a TV crew — and convinced her to marry him. They've been married now for more than 30 years. The two moved together from home to home as John completed assignments and deployments and Fran — who is currently the Director of Marketing for Driscoll's berry company — pursued her own career working for ABC's "Good Morning America" and Mattel toys. He calls her "the yin to his yang."

John's assignments included being a two-time infantry company commander of paratroopers in the 82nd Airborne Division, taking him to deployments in the Middle East and Panama. He was also stationed at the Presidio of San Francisco, where he was smitten by the beauty of California's coast and knew he needed to come back.

As luck would have it, he was sent to the Naval Postgraduate School on a military teaching assignment from 1994-1996. The Dillards bought a house in Carmel Woods, overlooking Hatton Canyon, with hopes of moving back.

After a more-than-20-year career, Dillard retired at the rank of colonel and took a job as a senior lecturer at the Naval Postgraduate School. The couple's dream of living here came true, and Dillard said they love the food, weather, and of course, the landscape.

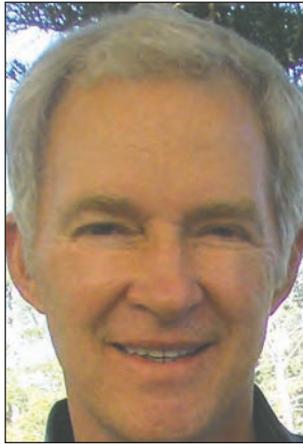

For 18 years and counting, he has served the Department of Defense as an educator and researcher at NPS in Systems Management, where he said his biggest reward has come from the coaching and mentoring of hundreds of students over the years — some of whom have achieved the highest military ranks. Students and younger coworkers are drawn to the magnetic mojo, a combination of Army discipline and Southern charm. He mentors many, going out of his way to advise younger colleagues how to contribute to their retirement plans or make career decisions. Sometimes, his role is simply to listen and lend wise words.

Dillard devotes a good deal of his spare time on the board of two charitable nonprofit organizations — the Hearing Health Foundation and the American Tinnitus Association — which fund research into the No. 1 disability reported by returning veterans from Iraq and Afghanistan: noise-induced hearing loss and tinnitus (phantom noise), often accompanied by PTSD.

"It hurts me to see our young men and women returning from overseas not only with sights they cannot 'un-see' and a ringing in their ears that won't stop. We have to get them more help than the system currently affords to them."

said Magnus Toren, the library's executive director. "He was an inspiration to the Beat Generation and the hippie movement. I've enjoyed his books, so I'm really looking forward to what Anne has to say." The talk starts at 2 p.m.

Also at the library, on June 15 a performance called "Typewriter Underground" — described as "immersive theater and literary performance that plunges its audience into the lives of a circle of renegades who have abandoned the internet for the thrilling physicality and sensual allure of hot type" will be presented by a group called Erotic Eclectic.

Showtime is 7:30 p.m. Tickets are $20, with discounts are available for Big Sur locals, students, seniors and active military. www.henrymiller.org.

A teacher — and student — of art

FOR THE first 20 years of her adult life, Carol Parker taught art to children. For the past two decades, she's focused more on her own evolution and education as an artist — a quest that continues to be a daily challenge.

She gave up full-time teaching in 1998, when she was juried into the prestigious Carmel Art Association, but at 73, Parker discusses her work with humility, declaring that she, herself, is still very much a student, with much to learn.

She works from life and photos, specializing in landscapes and seascapes, with a special affection for rowboats and fishing boats on placid waters. A series of paintings she calls "Water's Edge" will be displayed in a solo show at the Carmel Art Association gallery throughout the month of July.

Parker spent much of her youth in Fremont, and graduated from Washington High, where as a senior she went to prom with Bill Parker, the man she eventually married.

"He was kind of chasing me at first, and I wasn't ready, so he finally said, 'forget her' and we went off to college," she recollected with a laugh.

She earned a bachelor's degree from San Jose State, with a teaching certificate, then accompanied Bill to Chicago, where she taught art while he attended medical school. In 1978 they moved to their current countryside home, south of the Monterey-Salinas Highway, where they raised three daughters. Kim Moran, their firstborn, is a high school art teacher. Middle child Kristin Horton is in marketing. Tracy Parker, the youngest, is in architecture and environmental design. Bill has practiced orthopedic surgery in Monterey County for 40 years.

"I think a lot of art talent is hereditary. My father was a very good photographer, and my aunt was very artistic, painting with pastels," she said. "My memory as a child is looking at my comic books, trying to draw whatever I saw."

A high school art teacher recognized her gifts and tried to nudge her toward a career in scientific illustration, but she gravitated instead toward teaching, a decision she has never regretted.

"Teaching art to children is probably the most rewarding thing I've ever done," she said. "I did that for 20 years, and then did it again with my four grandkids."

Parker also joined with four other teachers to create an art docent program, training parents how to teach art curriculum as volunteers in local schools.

Full time

Her own education as an artist was bolstered by studying under several well known painters, including Charles Movalli, Ken Auster, Charles Reid, and Carmel Art Association legends Edward Norton Ward, George DeGroat, and Samuel Colburn, among others.

"I probably became what I'd consider to be a full-time artist in 1998, when I got into the Carmel Art Association," said Parker, who serves on the association's board of directors. "It was an enormous thrill to be accepted into a group with such an amazing

"I'm constantly trying new things and exploring as an artist. I'm trying to grow with my technique," she said. "I painted for a long time with watercolors, where you start with light, then add the dark. Now, I'm painting with oils, where you apply dark colors first, then bring in the lighter colors. It's totally different."

Hereditary talent

Parker adds to that challenge by varying her venues, often wandering outside her sun-splashed, backyard studio to work outdoors in the picturesque hills that surround her home south of Salinas.

"I enjoy painting plein air in a place I love. Whenever I'm outdoors, I feel like I'm putting my whole self into my art. I'm completely into it," she said. "I have a lot of admiration for abstract artists who paint what they imagine, but I like to paint what I see, and experiment with that. I try to throw myself into it and let go of the technical part a little bit."

Carol Parker, Carmel Art Association member since 1998, has a solo show at the association's gallery in July. Parker credits her family — many of whom are artistic — for nudging her towards her career.

Writer honors famous dad on his day

PUTTING AN interesting twist on Father's Day, Anne Watts will present a free talk about her father, the late philosopher and writer Alan Watts, Sunday, June 17, at the Henry Miller Library.

Watts is best known for helping to popularize Buddhism and eastern philosophy in Europe and North America. His 1957 book, "The Way of Zen," is considered a classic in the field. The English-born Watts lived in a houseboat in Sausalito, befriended Henry Miller and Aldous Huxley, and spent time in Big Sur, where he gave one of the first talks offered at Esalen Institute. He died in 1973.

At the library, Anne Watts will discuss "The Collected Letters of Alan Watts," a book she edited with her sister, Joan Watts.

"Alan Watts was deeply rooted in Big Sur," show their documentaries, then a panel asks them questions about their research. "It's scary," said Sam. "I was nervous at first." "It's a big deal," chimed in Tracy.

Sam's documentary is well made, with easy-to-read captions on the screen, good musical choices and a strong use of color, especially in the beginning, to capture the viewer's attention. He combed through dozens of magazine and newspaper articles and other resources to make sure he got the details of the story right. And although Sam did not win at nationals, the experience was life-changing for him and for a prison inmate he spoke with.

In creating his 10-minute documentary and accompanying 29-page annotated bibliography and report, Sam said he wanted more perspective on how the prison system works.

To that end, he interviewed Capt. James Bass, the sheriff who oversees the Monterey County Jail, Charles DaSilva, program director at the jail, and Sarafina Tomaselli, who is the inmate ombudsman there. He also spoke with Maggie Cleary, who works for the Actors' Gang Prison Project, a rehabilitation effort involving theater arts in Southern California.

The biggest impact on Sam came from his interview with the inmate, Clifford, however. He's been in and out of the system for decades, and became paralyzed while in San Quentin when a roof collapsed on him.

Because Sam wasn't old enough to visit a jail, Clifford's attorney got permission to take in a phone and set up a Skype call between the student and the inmate. The sounds in the background alone were unfamiliar and chilling.

"I could hear the heavy doors slamming behind people. It gave me a new perspective on prison," said Sam.

During the course of the conversation, Clifford relaxed and shared information about some hard things he'd been through in his youth, that his own attorney had never heard about before. Clifford also claimed he never received any of the rehabilitation programs that should have been available.

At Clifford's sentencing hearing, which Sam attended, the judge took the information Clifford had revealed into account and reduced his sentence by what Tracy said might turn out to be years.

Sam said that although he wasn't allowed near Clifford, the two pantomimed a handshake across the room after the hearing. He may not have won a national award, but knowing he helped Clifford to have a better life was reward enough.

He's been nearly everywhere — if there was a basketball court

ALMOST FIVE decades later, Jim Forkum is still in love, not only with his wife, Sherry, whom he met during his senior year at college, but also with a coaching and teaching career that began in 1970.

There's no other logical way to explain why the 71-year-old educator gleefully looks forward to the next school year at Stevenson High, where he serves as associate athletics director, and also coaches the Pirates' junior varsity basketball team.

Instead, he accepted a scholarship at Cal Baptist, where he left as the university's all-time scoring leader. Some of his records still stand.

Stevenson High School is Forkum's 14th stop as a teacher/coach/administrator, a tour that began at La Sierra High in Riverside and included Ponderosa High in Shingle Springs (near Sacramento), North Salinas High (1975-76), Washington State University (as an assistant basketball coach), then Colorado Women's College (where he recruited six high school All-Americans and won a Division II national championship with a program that won three games over the previous three seasons).

He was head basketball coach from 1981-95 at Hartnell College, where he guided the Panthers to a 30-4 record — the best in school history — and a top-five national ranking in his final season there.

Forkum's coaching stint with the Panthers will be celebrated Nov. 3 when he'll be among 14 individuals (plus that '94-'95 basketball team) inducted into Hartnell's Athletics Hall of Fame. It will mark the ninth time he has been enshrined into

He doesn't need the money. He's won more awards and honors than he has room to display. And Sherry? Well, Forkum feels blessed that she accepted his career choice all those years ago, often at the expense of her own accomplished career: She holds a Ph.D. in education, is a published author, and is recognized statewide as a teacher and mentor.

"Sherry realized very early that coaching was going to be a huge part of my life, and she was either going to be a part of that, or she wasn't. Thank God she decided to be a part of it," he said. "Our son (James Jr.) was born during my senior year as a basketball player at California Baptist University in Riverside, and basically grew up behind the bench. I can remember him taking naps back there while I was playing."

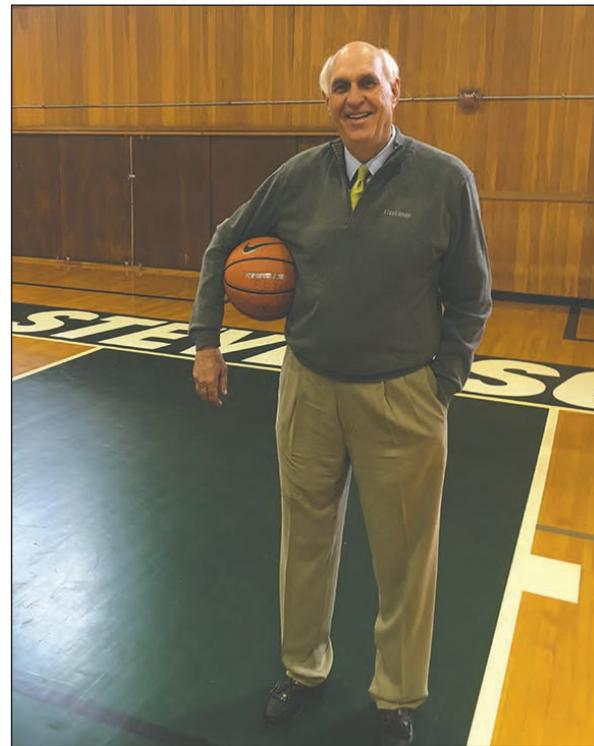

The weakest starter

As a player, the 6-foot-4 Forkum claims to have been "the weakest starter" on a strong team at Highlands High in Sacramento. After graduating, he headed to Riverside Community College to play for a future coaching legend, Jerry Tarkanian, but changed his mind after discovering that most of Tark's state championship team from the previous year was returning. He wasn't likely to get off the bench.

LOVE Carmel Beach

PROTECT AND ENJOY IT

The City of Carmel-by-the-Sea has established beach fire rules to help improve the experience of all the beach users and protect the environment.

- The daily hours for wood and propane beach fires is between 4PM and 10PM
- Wood-fueled fires are allowed ONLY in the fire pits supplied by the city
- Beach fires are prohibited north of 10th Avenue
- Use a small amount of water to cool the fire pit after use and let the fire burn itself out. Do not use sand.
- Charcoal-fueled (briquettes) fires are not allowed
- Please do not burn driftwood or kelp (seaweed)
- Propane-fueled fires are allowed at least 25 feet from the base of the bluff or dunes, from 10th Avenue south toward Martin Way
- No reservations required to use the fire pits. Sharing of the fire pits is highly encouraged
- Please don't leave any trash or recyclables on the beach or in the fire pit
- If you are planning an event on the beach, please contact (831) 620-2020 a school hall of fame as a coach or administrator.

"After that 1994-95 season, I figured I had pretty much accomplished all I could at Hartnell, other than going for an undefeated season, and I was offered the chance to coach at Hawaii Hilo, an NCAA Division II university," he said. "That sounded very exciting to both Sherry and me, so we jumped at the opportunity."

His three-year stay was equal parts paradise and purgatory. An economic downturn hit the Hawaiian Islands, budgets were slashed, promises were broken. Life and culture on Hawaii's big island often proved challenging to Forkum's recruits. Sherry's paychecks as a teacher there were disappointing, and her job security was nil. After she was laid off for the third time, they returned to California.

"After Hawaii, I spent four seasons at Sierra College in Rockland, but discovered that I just didn't have the fire to coach junior college basketball anymore," Forkum said. "Then I spent seven years as dean and athletics director Santa Rosa Junior College — a great job — before I retired."

Fulfilling a dream

In 2014, Jim and Sherry fulfilled a bucket-list dream and moved to Carmel. Five weeks later, they got an opportunity to spend a year in Egypt, where Forkum was a high school athletics director, organizing private schools into a league for multiple sports.

"Their schools played a lot of sports, but, believe it or not, they weren't playing against each other. They didn't even play the same sport in the same season. One school might play volleyball in the spring, while another would be playing soccer, and another would be playing basketball. It made no sense," he said.

Forkum synchronized those programs and formed leagues that included private schools in Lebanon, Jordan, Kuwait, Dubai, Saudi Arabia, and Egypt.

"It was a wonderful experience for us," he said. "We not only got to see all of those places, but we got visit Turkey, Spain, Portugal, and all over Western Europe," he said.

Exodus and opportunity

After returning from Egypt, Forkum guided the junior varsity basketball team at Marina High to its first .500 season (2015-2016) and coached Pacific Grove's freshman team (2016-2017) before accepting his current duties at Stevenson, where he's already been offered a contract to stay on as a coach and administrator next fall.

"I'm also teaching graduate courses online in for Concordia University in Irvine, which is something I really enjoy," he said. "It pays well and it keeps me academically stimulated."

The Forkums are charter board members of Global Parity Foundation, an organization that provides health services for women and children in rural Nepal. Jim manages a budget of nearly $3 million as treasurer of the foundation at Church of the Wayfarer in Carmel, and Sherry is co-chair of the church's scholarship committee, which provides $40,000 a year in scholarships to Monterey County students.

Their son, James, is an artist, and their daughter, Tara Patanian, is an executive assistant for Four Seasons Hotels in San Francisco.

Dennis Taylor is a freelance writer in Monterey County. Contact him at scribelautre@me.com.

Nothing but strings — Big Sur fiddle camp celebrates acoustic music

JUST AS they do each year, an eclectic assortment of musicians from several continents will gather down the coast for the Big Sur Fiddle Camp's annual Community Concert Friday, June 15.

The performers are professional musicians who serve as instructors for the camp, which happens each June at a private ranch. A barn will serve as the site of the concert.

This year's lineup includes singer-songwriter Phoebe Hunt, violinists Edwin Huizinga and Alex Hargreave, cellist Georgy Gusez, guitarist William Coulter, mandolinist Dominick Leslie and many others — along with the 40 students participating in this year's camp.

The camp offers the students who play stringed instruments an opportunity to improve their skills with few distractions. The youngest is 11, and while some are beginners, others are quite advanced.

"We're a music immersion program," the fiddle camp's Lygia Chappellet told The Pine Cone. "That means the students eat, drink and sleep music with professionals from around the world."

While music the kids play is varied, much of it falls into the realm of Americana. "It's mostly bluegrass, Celtic, Cajun and old-time music," Chappellet explained.

The instructors, meanwhile, come from many backgrounds, but share an affection for acoustic music. "We have a cellist from Russia, a singer from the Ivory Coast, a Basque fiddler from Wyoming and a band from New York with some of the top bluegrass and Gypsy jazz players in the country,"

■ Jazz at the Cherry

Multi-instrumentalist and educator Paul Contos joins a father-son duo, Bob and Kyle Athayde, on stage at the Cherry Center for the Arts Saturday, June 16. The performance is the latest in the nonprofit's Jazz at the Cherry series.

Adept on saxophone and flute, Contos has played or recorded with many luminaries, including Dizzy Gillespie, Wynton and Branford Marsalis, Christian McBride and Roy Hargrove. He is also director of education for the Monterey Jazz Festival.

Contos was honored as a "Champion of the Arts" in Monterey County in 2015, and he received a Jazz Education Achievement Award from Downbeat Magazine last year.

Bob Athayde is a gifted pianist, while his son, Kyle, plays just about every instrument. The latter has deep local roots — as a young musician, he played in the Next Generation Jazz Orchestra for three years.

"We hope you will join us for what is sure to be a delightful afternoon of classic jazz gems, Brazilian jazz and other creative inspirations," Cherry Center executive director Robert Reese said.

The concert starts at 3 p.m. Tickets are $25. The Cherry Center is located at Guadalupe and Fourth. (831) 624-7491.

■ Country star makes local debut

A hit-making country singer-songwriter with an opera background and a sharp wit, Tyler Farr takes the stage June 15 at Golden State Theatre in Monterey.

Trained to be an opera singer in high school, Farr veered off into country music after his mother married a guitarist who toured with the late country great George Jones. His career took off when "Redneck Crazy" rose to No. 2 on the country

Summer Solstice feasting, BBQ with Dad, and lots of education about wine

A SLEW of feasts in honor of the Summer Solstice are planned for June 21, with Il Fornaio hosting Morgan Winery, Cima Collina offering wines and dining under the stars, and the Carmel Valley Chophouse hosting a Craft Whisky Smokehouse Dinner.

niques to create wines of balance, elegance and distinction,” and the chef has prepared a lineup to complement them.

Appetizers of crostini topped with smoked salmon and goat cheese, mushrooms stuffed with bell pepper and sausage, and sea scallops wrapped in pancetta will accompany the winery’s ever-popular 2014 Monterey Sauvignon Blanc, and a first course of grilled romaine hearts with shaved pecorino and house dressing will be paired with 2014 Santa Lucia Highlands Chardonnay.

Fresh spinach pasta with roasted duck, mixed mushroom ragout and Grana Padano cheese will be served with 2014 Santa Lucia Highlands 12 Clone Pinot Noir, and guests will have their choice of main course — either baked wild cod or roasted rack of lamb, both served with sautéed vegetables and roasted potatoes. Morgan’s 2014 Santa Lucia Highlands Double L Pinot Noir will accompany the entrée course. And for dessert, chocolate and Frangelico-infused sponge cake with chocolate mousse, and 2014 Double L Riesling.

Il Fornaio is located in the Pine Inn at Monte Verde and Ocean. Call (831) 622-5100 to reserve.

More deliciousness

At Cima Collina, 19-A East Carmel Valley Road in the Village, the evening will begin with a reception at 6:30, followed by dinner at 7. Carmel Valley Market owner and chef Jerome Viel will create the dishes to pair with winemaker Annette Hoff’s latest releases.

The menu planned for the evening includes passed appetizers of mushroom arancini, melon shooters, and pate with 2017 sparkling rosé of pinot noir, followed by a first course of heirloom tomatoes and mozzarella with house olive oil and balsamic reduction, and a butter lettuce salad with fruit and feta, paired with 2017 Hilltop Ranch Pinot Gris and 2014 Tondre Grapefield Chardonnay.

The main course will be grilled octopus Provençal, ratatouille, and grilled marinated hanger steak, with 2013 Antle Swan Pinot Noir, 2012 Hilltop Ranch Pinot Noir, and 2014 Argyle Vineyard Petit Verdot, which is yet to be released.

Dessert will be assorted cheeses, apricot tarts and cardamom ice cream.

Club members are $65 per person, and everyone else is $100 each, including tax and tip. To reserve, go to www.cimacollina.com or call (831) 620-0645.

Just down the road at the Carmel Valley Chophouse on Center Street in the Village, chef/owner Fabrice Roux is planning a special menu for the Summer Solstice Craft Whiskey

Wine education at Big Sur Vineyards

Kerry Winslow of Big Sur Vineyards will host a wine education night focusing on Rhone-style wines from 7 to 8:30 p.m. June 16. The region in France was the inspiration for Winslow and Lenora Carey Hart's wines, and its 2017 rosé, 2015 Big Sur Red and 2015 Syrah will be poured alongside their Rhone counterparts. Cheeses will accompany the wines.

Winslow will cover the basics of the region and discuss the grapes and terroir influences that contribute to the wines.

"This will be a fun evening and good for the novice as well as the wine connoisseur," they said. "Great for a date night or a pre-dinner start-me-up." Tickets are $35, with wine club members getting a $10 credit at the door. To sign up, find the tasting on Eventbrite. The Big Sur Vineyards tasting room is located at 1 Del Fino Place in Carmel Valley Village.

Scheid hands out scholarships

Scheid Family Wines has distributed more than $320,000 in scholarships to students over the past three decades, and this week, the company announced the winners of this year's awards. Company founder Al Scheid started the program and writing contest in 1984 for his alma mater, Bridgeport High School in Ohio, as a way to give back to the community and motivate students to go to college. In 1988, he brought it to King City High, and Greenfield High (built, incidentally, on former Scheid vineyard land) was added in 2001.

"Al has always believed that being able to communicate ideas effectively is the key to success," according to the company, so a writing contest made sense. Each year, winners are selected based on how well they research and write an essay on a particular topic, whether it be Guantanamo Bay and interrogation techniques, the pros and cons of the Electoral College, the impact of social media on society, or immigration reform. The topic for 2018 was the National Anthem and the protests that started with former 49ers quarterback Colin

Fifteen students won awards totaling $8,950 for each school.

French wines at Stave

Sommelier Jeff Birkemeier, wine manager for Pebble Beach Resorts, will oversee a tasting of French wines at Stave, the wine shop and tasting room at the Inn at Spanish Bay, June 22 from 6 to 7:15 p.m. A June 20 tasting focusing on French wines sold out so quickly that he decided to add another.

Birkemeier, an advanced level sommelier, said he plans to pour wines from Bordeaux, Burgundy, Rhône, Loire, Alsace, and one other region. "Probably not Champagne, as there is a Champagne class coming up," he added.

The cost is $25 per person, including tax. For more information and reservations, email stavewinecellar@pebble-beach.com or call (831) 644-7997.

Sardine Factory golden memories

In celebration of its 50th anniversary coming up in October, the Sardine Factory is holding a writing contest in which the winner will get dinner for 12 in the factory's famous wine cellar, complete with pairings.

Essays are limited to 200 words and should focus on a favorite Sardine Factory memory.

dus winery, will offer a tour of Ingrid's Vineyard — the small vineyard of chardonnay and pinot noir growing in front of Bernardus Lodge on Carmel Valley Road — during a special lunch there June 24 from noon to 3 p.m.

Chef Jerome Viel will provide the food, and winemaker Dean DeKorth will pour the wines to accompany them. Casey Frazier will provide the music to make an already fantastic setting even more spectacular.

The cost is $135 per person ($125 for wine club members), and reservations are required. Call (831) 298-8021.

■ Paraiso Vineyard of the Year

The highly regarded California State Fair chose Smith Family Wines' Paraiso Vineyards as the Vineyard of the Year. The award recognizes a specific property that has "produced superior quality grapes over several growing seasons, and whose harvests have contributed to the making of wines that have performed well commercially and been well received by wine connoisseurs."

Jason Smith, company president and CEO, noted that his family has been farming grapes since the 1970s and purchased the land that became its estate vineyard in 1987.

The family grows pinot noir, chardonnay and Riesling — all of which do well in the long, cool growing season of the Salinas Valley.

Paraiso was also among the first vineyards in the area to receive certification for sustainable farming — using water-wise techniques, employing earth-friendly pest abatement like falcons and low-level pesticides, planting cover crops, and taking other measures to protect the land and crops without damaging wildlife, water supply and soil.

Edgar's at Quail Lodge is offering a special Father's Day BBQ — and a fabulous terrace to enjoy it on.

Sunset welcomes P.G. studio artists, village hosts annual 'block party'

TEN ARTISTS who have budget-priced studios inside Pacific Grove's American Tin Cannery are showcased this month in Sunset Center's Marjorie Evans Gallery.

The participants — all members of the Art and Meheen Ruby.

Titled "Identity," the show includes oils, acrylics, watercolors and mixed media.

Thanks to support from the nonprofit Arts Council for Monterey County, the studio artists pay modest rents on their studios.

"Our deputy director, Jacquie Atchison, developed this program when she learned that the American Tin Cannery had space available just when artists' need for affordable space was at a critical point," said Paulette Lynch, executive director of the arts council. "We are thrilled to have this opportunity to showcase their exciting work in such a great space.”

Sunset Center is located at San Carlos and Ninth. For more for about the artists and their studio, visit www.arts4mc.org.

■ Art and wine, together again

More than 40 artists — including painters, photographers, glass artists and jewelers — will display their creations Saturday, June 16, at the 14th annual Art & Wine Celebration in Carmel Valley Village. The Center Street Marketplace will be the site of the event.

“This Carmel Valley block party kicks-off summer in the village,” said Elizabeth Vitarisi Suro, the chamber’s director.

The artists include Phyllis Fletcher, Brock Bradford, Kathy Klawans Smith, Alan Masaoka, Rosemary Heinz, Deborah Russell and many others. Russell, who is the event’s featured artist, just opened a new gallery, Peridot Fine Art, in the Center Street Marketplace.

The celebration also provides a stage for live music. The lineup features mandolinist David Holodiloff, cabaret singer Debbie Davis and two jazz trios.

The event is free, and wine tasting tickets are $40. For more details, visit www.carmelvalleychamber.com.

■ Students give back

Art has long popped up in unusual places on the Monterey Peninsula, and the latest entries are two murals that recently went on display outside Lucky supermarket at the mouth of Carmel Valley.

Titled, “Produce of Monterey County” and “From Farm to Table,” the murals were created by Carmel High School students — and funded by the supermarket chain.

“Lucky California donated $2,000 to the school’s arts program and in return students created two wonderful art murals that celebrate the food culture of the region,” Lucky spokeswoman Victoria Castro said. “We are pleased to announce both murals are now up and displayed in front of the store for the entire community to enjoy.”

■ The fine art of humor

Illustrator Will Bullas will bring along his sharp wit when he presents a free talk, “The Complete History of Humor in Art,” June 16 at the Carmel Art Association.

A display of Bullas’ work, “Soliloquies,” is on display at the nonprofit gallery through July 3.

The talk starts at 5:30 p.m. The gallery is located on Dolores between Fifth and Sixth. Call (831) (831) 624-6176 or visit www.carmelart.org.

■ From the valley to the coast

Four artists from the state’s capital come together when the exhibit, “A Pop of Color — Sacramento Roots,” opens June 16 at the Nancy Dodds Gallery.

The artists include painter Leslie Toms, Laurie Winthers and Tim Collom, and sculptor Cindy Wilson.

“I’m so excited about this show,” Dodds said. “It’s going to be beautiful and whimsical.”

Located on Seventh just west of San Carlos, the gallery will be the site of a reception from 5 to 7 p.m. The exhibit continues through July 15.

■ Taking it to the next level

The author of a book about photography, Marc Silber will present a free talk June 16 at Harrison Memorial Library.

“No matter what kind of camera you’re using, you can take your photography to the next level by learning composition tools,” reads an invitation to the event.

Besides being an accomplished video producer, photographer, and educator, Silber is the author of “Advancing Your Photography.” The talk starts at 10 a.m. The library is located at Ocean and Lincoln.

The Ultimate Lifestyle in Pebble Beach

www.1498CypressDrive.com

The famed Canary Cottage sits on the most exclusive oceanfront acreage in Pebble Beach. The existing compound consists of six structures totaling over 6,600 square feet of livable space with an abundance of water credits. This once in a century opportunity awaits the genius of its next owner to create an estate that compliments the grandeur of its setting. The 2.2 acres offer captivating oceanfront views of Stillwater Cove, Carmel Bay, and Point Lobos with the convenience of being located next to the world class amenities at The Lodge at Pebble Beach. Offered at $32,000,000.

A Father's Day nightmare: Going on trial for messing up his kids' lives

THANKFULLY IT was a dream. I was sitting in the witness chair in a courtroom facing my three children who were questioning my parenting skills. I was the defendant and they were prosecutors. My wife was the judge.

Daughter No. 1: Please state your name and occupation for the record.

Me: Jerry Gervase. I'm a father.

Daughter No. 1: Please tell the court how long you've been a father.

Me: (smiling devilishly) But if I say how long I've been a father everyone will know how old you are.

Daughter No. 1: Strike that question. One of the charges against you is embarrassing your children in front of their friends.

Judge: (emphatically) And not just your children!

Me: I can't remember ever embarrassing any of you.

Daughter No. 1: Not true. The only time you cleaned your shotgun was when my boyfriend came over.

Me: You mean butt-crack Billy?

Judge: Hah! You were pretty famous for your low-riders, too.

Daughter No. 2: Don't forget the time you mooned me when I drove by your apartment.

Scenic Views

By JERRY GERVASE

Me: I knew I wouldn't be seeing you for a while and I wanted you to have an unforgettable memory of me.

Daughter No. 2: I wish I could forget it!

Me: Now you're being mean.

Son: You think that was mean? You rented my room when I went away to college.

Me: Yes, but I waived the rent for you when you came home to visit. And you only had to share the bathroom with two other people.

Daughter No. 1: That's nothing. When I went away to school you moved and didn't tell me.

Me: The post office sent you a change of address notification.

Judge: One year for Mother's Day he bought me a 10-horsepower roto-tiller.

Me: That was during our "Green Acres" period. You said you wanted to start a garden.

Judge: A garden, yes — not something that was eligible for farm subsidies.

Son: Speaking of "Green Acres," how about the time you killed our pet rabbit and tried to pass it off as chicken at dinner?

Me: It wasn't a pet. It was a rabbit-making machine. Besides, I was trying to introduce different kinds of protein into your diet.

Judge: For protein, you could have used all the soybeans I planted after roto-tilling 40 acres.

Son: You sent me to first grade at gunpoint.

Me: The gun wasn't loaded. Besides, you were 14 years old. It was time to leave home.

Son: I was not 14.

Me: You were shaving.

Judge: (banging gavel) Stop picking on my little boy.

Daughter No. 1: You never liked any of my boyfriends.

Me: I had a predisposition against felons.

Daughter No. 1: None of them had a record.

Me: None of them had been caught.

Judge: (banging gavel) All right. Everyone calm down. Let's have a little civility. Isn't there anyone here who can speak for the defendant?

Suddenly Atticus Finch — played by Gregory Peck — appeared in the courtroom. Hey, it's my dream. I can have anyone I want in it.

Atticus: "The one place where a man ought to get a square deal is in a courtroom."

Me: Tell them, Atticus.

Atticus: Don't interrupt me, Scout.

Me: Why can't I say anything?

Atticus: "I don't give reasons. I give orders."

Me: Wait. That line is from Moby Dick, not To Kill a Mockingbird.

Atticus: I can be anyone I want in a dream.

Me: Can't I get anyone to help me?

Judge: How about Bill Cosby. He was a great TV father as Cliff Huxtable.

Me: Great. Just what I need — #MeToo coming after me.

Robert Young: (As Jim Anderson in "Father Knows Best.") I can speak for the defendant. Hey kids. Were you ever hungry? Did you always have clothes, food on the table and a roof over your heads?

Children: (in unison) Yes, we did.

Me: Wait. That's no defense. That's the minimum a father can do. That and $4 will get you a handcrafted coffee drink prepared by a politically correct diversity-trained barista at Starbucks. Any father should provide the basics. I tried to do more. I taught you how to fly.

Children: (in unison, again) What are you talking about?

Me: Look at you. Two nurses and a teacher. Are there more noble professions? Two of you bring comfort to the sick and injured and their families, whispering encouraging words when despair beckons. And one of you mentors America's most precious resource, its children. You are all rich in social capital. You are soaring above most of the people in this country.

My buzzing phone woke me up. It was my younger daughter wishing me a happy Father's Day. The other two called later in the day. We talked and laughed about all the good times we've had. I thought about how lucky I was to have them. They are a dream come true.
